COTTON INTERESTS
THREATEN CUT OF
COMPRESS BUSINESS

Hearing

LOCAL COTTON CIR-
CLES WATCHING
They Believe Decision
Will Have Bearing
On the Future

Business circles in these cities to-day watched intently the proceedings of the Interstate Commerce commission representatives at Montgomery as a hearing is held regarding the petition of large cotton interests, reported to be in the Carolinas and Georgia, asking that regulations permitting the shipment of cotton past compressing points be adopted. John W. Jones and Clyde Hendrix, prominent business men of these cities are attending the hearing, believing that the decision of the commission will have a vital bearing on a large amount of local business.

It is understood that the laws now in effect provide that baled cotton cannot be shipped past a compressing point without being compressed at that particular point. This custom has been in effect for a number of years and it is believed that the large cotton interests are attempting to remove business from the hands of smaller compressors in various points east of the Mississippi river. It was shown that in case the commission decides in favor of the petition of cotton interests that Albany-Decatur business will be cut from the handling of approximately 50,000 to 75,000 bales to a figure estimated at between 10,000 and 15,000 bales.

Cotton interests, it is understood, are asking that they be allowed to ship "flat," shipping the bales as they come from the gin.

The stand of the railroads is not understood locally, it not being known just what position they are taking. The railroads pay the expense for compressing, except in the case of high density compression, it was explained.

Granting of the petition in favor of cotton interests will prove a severe blow to the smaller cotton interests of the South, it is believed, Albany-Decatur being largely effected by the loss of thousands of dollars in trading each year.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 18.—Alleging that the cotton markets and the cotton concentration centers of Alabama would be disrupted and that a great loss will be suffered by Alabama, cotton buyers, commercial organizations and the state of Alabama Monday began a fight against the proposal of the Atlantic Cotton Association and others for the promulgation of new rules and regulations and new rates for the transportation and concentration of cotton in the South.

The hearing began before Examiners Cassidy and Worthington, of the interstate commerce commission here today. The state contended that a serious economic loss to Alabama would be suffered by the success of the Atlantic interests, filed an intervenor in the name of the attorney general. Harwell G. Davis and Hugh White, special assistant attorney general appeared in behalf of the state.

The chambers of commerce of Montgomery, Birmingham, Mobile and Dothan were represented by their traffic managers, respectively: M. M. Caskie, C. E. Jones, B. G. Tobbs and Ed M. Weatherly, while other commercial organizations are represented through the appearance of these traffic managers. Mr. Caskie also represents the Alabama Bureau Farm Federation.

The Wreck Is Cleared
By Morning As
Crews Toil

Wreckage was cleared this morning along the Southern Railway bridge following a Louisville and Nashville freight wreck Sunday night reported at 7:30 o'clock. Trains were held up until an early hour this morning as crews worked feverishly in an effort to open the main line of both the Louisville and Nashville and Southern roads. The dropping of a brake beam, causing one of the cars to partially leave the track was thought to have been the cause for the wreck it was stated by workmen.

Little damage is thought to have been done by the wreck, though reports were prevalent that a freight had run through the bridge and that cars had dropped below to the waters. Some damage was done to a section of cross-ties, just off the draw span of the bridge.

Crews were placed on the work just as soon as reports were made to the local offices and continued clearing the tracks until two o'clock this morning. Trains were held up during that time, but a regular schedule was in effect this morning.

It was stated that the Southern repair work on the bridge will be completed about March 1. Men are still busy working around the piers and making all necessary repairs.

The reward was paid by Glenn Maughner of Indianapolis, Ind., who, with a companion, was said to be en route home from Florida.

Local Churches Plan To Send Visitors To The Meeting

Several thousand Methodist laymen from over Alabama are expected to attend in Birmingham, Feb. 3-4, one of the sixteen great regional conferences on brotherhood and stewardship throughout the territory of the M. E. church, South. It is announced by officials of the church. With sessions at the First Methodist church of Birmingham, the Alabama convention will have among its outstanding leaders two eminent laymen from England and Bishop W. B. Beauchamp, of the Southern Methodist church, president of the World Brotherhood Federation.

Plans for the wide program of laymen's conferences are said by leaders of the church to have been under way for more than two years. The new spirit among churchmen in all denominations, characterized by such movements, is regarded as most significant. Fostering the Alabama conference are the General Board of Lay Activities, and the Methodist Laymen's club of Birmingham.

The English laymen to address the meeting are William Ward of London formerly president of the World Brotherhood Federation and Sir Richard Winfrey, member of Parliament, and an outstanding publisher and churchman of the British Isles.

It is hoped by those in charge of the regional conference in Birmingham Feb. 3-4 that in addition to sending the pro rata share of lay delegates, organizations of the church such as brotherhood classes or missionary societies will insure attendance of the pastors of all churches of the Alabama and the North Alabama Conference which is the largest in the M. E. Church, South.

Railroads, protected by government, enjoy prosperity steadily increasing. They should divide prosperity with the men that do the work, through the nights in cold and rain, when those that collect dividends are asleep.

All Americans, especially business men and money makers, should demand that good workmen get their fair share of national prosperity. The rich man can get only his share of what the average man has to spend.

GOVERNMENT figures show that from 1920 to 1924, "Automobiles killed 60,876 men, women and children."

Calculated to give the false and damaging impression that the automobile in itself is a dangerous, deadly demon, these figures are not true to fact.

GIRL DIES WITHOUT

"Christmas Party" Has Fatal Aftermath at Birmingham

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 18.—Authorities today started inquiry into the death of Miss Jewell Cross, of Falkner, Miss., who died yesterday from stab wounds, inflicted by an unidentified person during a Christmas party. R. C. Cross, father of the young woman, was at his daughter's bedside for several days before her death. Detectives said she steadfastly refused to divulge the name of her assailant to them and her parents.

The young woman came here from Falkner in October last, and secured employment, her father said. The attack upon the girl took place at a house on Seventeenth street north, where she was attending a Christmas party with friends. She was removed to the Hillman hospital where she was later questioned by detectives. To her father she revealed some of the details of the case, but the name of her assailant was never made known.

Police were sifting the evidence before them in an effort to learn the identity of that person. Miss Cross lived with the family of Mrs. J. C. Lawrence, 4112 1-2 Twenty First street North.

Recent Robbery Calls
Attention To Safety

Yeggs who seek to enter the safes in banking and mercantile establishments in North Alabama henceforth may discover robbery of these safes is no easy matter.

Poison gas now has been installed as part of the safety equipment of a number of North Alabama banks, while business houses are following the lead and by the end of the year it is likely that most of the larger safes in this section will have safety devices in addition to the steel doors.

The poison gas method is said to be a simple, but effective method to prevent robbery of the safe. The gas is stored within the safe itself, and when entrance is forced quantities of the gas are released as sections of the safe are penetrated. The gas, it is said, would be fatal to anyone remaining within the immediate vicinity of the safe.

The recent robbery of the Tennessee Valley bank, at Scottsboro, when an acetylene torch was used, it is believed to cut through the steel door of the safe, has focused the attention of many business men on the matter of making their safes safe. Several institutions have been equipped with burglar alarms and bankers were declared to be resorting to all kind of ingenious schemes to prevent an outbreak of looting in North Alabama.

North Carolina Delegates Urge Congress
To Permit More Dams On Tennessee

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The senate agricultural committee was urged today by representatives of civic bodies of North Carolina to sanction immediate license of water power development on the Tennessee river and its tributaries.

Delegations appeared in opposition to a resolution offered by Chairman Norris, which would prohibit the federal power commission from issuing permits to develop power projects on the Tennessee river and its tributaries until congress had adopted a Muscle Shoals policy.

Marcus W. Brown, of Asheville told the committee that postponement of development of the Tennessee river would retard industrial development in North Carolina and Tennessee. He declared that delay "would do infinitely more harm to the community than higher prices for power that might be charged by private interests."

Senator Norris declared he introduced the resolution because he was

Sales of cigarettes to minors in Morgan County must cease, or the sellers will be prosecuted.

Warning to this effect was given today by Sheriff Ernest Poole, who declared he was in receipt of complaints from school authorities that sales of ciggies to persons under 21 years of age are becoming so numerous that cigarette addicts are numbered among the school children of the county.

The complaints further stated that some students find it difficult to go through the school day without their "smoke" so strong has the habit become with them.

Sheriff Poole pointed out that the state laws contain provisions against the sale of cigarettes to minors and he declared his intention of doing all within his power to enforce the ruling. It was understood also that court authorities plan to stand steadfastly behind the sheriff in enforcement of the provisions.

Sheriff Poole expressed the hope that dealers handling cigarettes would lend their co-operation to the authorities, making their task less difficult in preventing sales of cigarettes to minors, and aiding in stamping out a practice which apparently has become widespread.

The rainfall, starting Saturday and continuing throughout Sunday was one of the heaviest on record for these cities at this period of the year.

The registration board of Morgan County went into session this morning at the courthouse here, and the registration books will remain open at this point for a period of ten days. During this time the board will register prospective voters from any beat in the county.

Officials expressed the hope that full advantage will be taken of the opportunity by citizens who have not yet qualified themselves to cast a ballot in Morgan County.

For the young people it was pointed out that anyone reaching the age of 21 years by the time of the November elections can register now and vote this fall. If persons becoming 21 before that time fail to qualify they will have no further opportunity to register, and therefore will be unable to vote regardless of their age or polls payment.

It was pointed out also that world war veterans are not faced with the necessity of paying poll tax, but are required to register and afterward to present their honorable discharge to the probate court in order to fully qualify themselves to cast their ballots.

During the current year Alabama citizens will vote in several elections of paramount importance and it is believed that registration during the ten-day period here will be heavy.

THE STORY THUS FAR

Joanna, pretty, modern, a shop girl, making her way alone in the world, is summoned into the presence of Gordon, her employer, to learn that an unknown man has given her a cool million to spend as she wishes. Dazed, incoherent, she asks as to the meaning of this deluge of money. She is told that she is not even to know the name of the man who is giving the money. There are no "strings" to the gift. "You will not be asked to give anything," said Gordon, in reply to her questions. Still unable to understand this overwhelming information, she is sent to banker Eggleston where the money is on deposit.

"What did she say? How did she take it? Did she—that is—well, damn it, man! Is that all you have to say? That your sales clerk is coming down to get a million dollars?"

Eggleston's chief reputation in cap. When she would have looked at her letter to find the address, he interrupted: "I know where, Miss! Mr. Graydon gave instructions. It's to the bank."

Never before, it seemed to Joanna, had a car taken so long to go wherever it was headed for. Yet, really, the chauffeur threaded traffic skillfully. Joanna's excitement turned suddenly to panic when she realized that her driver was holding his arm to ease her to the pavement, with the arched stone portals of the bank looming in front of her. A doorman responded to a sign from the driver. There was a low word between them. The doorman touched his cap.

"I am to take you to Mr. Eggleston's rooms, Miss," he said, with a deference which Joanna recognized at once. Eggleston, she understood was the man she was to see. The utter drama of it all appalled her again. She looked into the chauffeur's face and caught, there, a gleam of understanding that, after all, she was a just a girl of the shops whose tinselled glory, whose ornaments, airs and faeries had not danced in Joanna's soul. There was laughter there, and, many, many dreams; but no illusions.

So Joanna, convinced against her will that something tremendous was happening to her, cornered herself for admitting such a possibility. She wanted to catch her guide, the liveried attendant, by the sleeve and force him to give her an accounting of his obsequiousness to her. But panic was not far from her weariness. Her breath began to come in tremendous gasps when the paneled door marked with the name of the great man she had been told would receive her, swung inward. She heard her guide announce her:

"The lady you are expecting, sir!"

She was conscious of someone sitting at a great black table; someone who rose and glared at her without speaking; someone who was very forbidding, and to the eyes of youth, very old and incapable of understanding any thoughts or emotions such as she might experience. In such a presence Joanna didn't know what to do. The man spoke her name. Surprisingly, just as it had been with Graydon, these pompous important old men had voices that didn't rasp.

"Will you sit here?"

He pointed to a chair opposite him. Joanna, wholly helpless again, slid into the chair. After while she realized that the man of whom she had heard so much as one of those mysterious money kings, still looked at her; that he had leaned back in his own chair and was just looking at her with queer lights playing in his eyes and something about his lips that, surely! This old man's lips were quivering! It struck Joanna as screamingly funny. Not even the warning hand of doom could have prevented her just then, from laughing. Andrew Eggleston smiled, too. But it was a fleeting smile. He was instantly grave and forbidding. And Joanna was frightened again. She felt uncomfortable. The back of her neck burned, as if someone were looking at it, or at her. She wanted to turn around, but merely moved in her chair.

The young man who still stood in the window embrasure at the other end of the room prepared to come forward. When he saw that the girl had not detected his presence he fell again to his silent inspection of the figure in the chair whose back was turned to him. The unpleasant, rather cynical smile played again about his mouth. Occasionally his glance took in the other figure, the old man whose white lined hands and markets and feet of ships and, as some people often said, the policies of nations.

It was Joanna who at last broke the fraught silence.

"Well, I'm here," I suppose you wanted to see me. That's what they said?"

"It was a natural desire," Eggleston admitted. "It is not usual, even in this bank, for new accounts to be opened with a deposit of a million dollars. It is not an inconsequential sum—for any one." Joanna couldn't stand it any longer. "Won't you please give it to me straight?" she pleaded, earnestly, sitting forward in her chair so that her hands might rest on the big table. "Please!" she repeated. "I was all right when I got up this morning and everybody else was all right and there was never anybody in my family that went to the asylum. And there's nobody I ever knew who could leave me a million pennies let alone dollars except an uncle, and he couldn't because I had to dig up two dollars a week for a year to pay the installments on his funeral. And I want to get back to my job or old Good Morning—I mean the department manager, will be as sore as a billygoat—no, I mean he'll be angry. Please, Mr. Eggleston, what's it all about?"

Strangely, the girl's frantic plea affected the two men in the room differently. Eggleston nodded his head quite as if he agreed that something should be done to clear up the frenzy of doubts and confusion that must be flooding the shop girl's mind, and he smiled again, pleasantly, as if warmed by some inner satisfaction. But the smile that had been about the mouth of the other man, whose presence Joanna had not yet detected, suddenly vanished. He regarded the back of the girl's neck, his gaze seeming to reach around and encompass her, with a new sort of interest. Still there was doubt in his eyes.

The banker reached into his table drawer and brought out a folded check book; the daintier kind that are shaped for the hand bags of women. With elaborate pains he opened the book, bent back the crease in the sheet of blank checks which it contained, and thus spread out, he shoved it toward Joanna's hand. From his pocket he took his own gold fountain pen, opened it, and held it out to her.

Isn't there a homely saying that runs something like this? he said: "The proof of the pudding is in the eating." It seems that I have heard that expression, and it is very apt, though a little old-fashioned perhaps. You may draw your first check for whatever amount you like. I will have the money brought you."

Joanna looked at the unfamiliar check book, at the fountain pen which she had taken involuntarily, and then at the banker.

Mayor John Cappey of Asheville, declared that Muscle Shoals was like the poor. "It will be with us all the time. Muscle Shoals will never be settled as long as it is in politics," he added.

He declared that life of the communities depended on power and it was no much the question of the cost as they must have it if industrial operations are to be continued.

Julius C. Martin, attorney for the Pigeon River Power company, declared the company had spent $350,000 for the purchase of land with the view of going through with the power development which they planned to do without interruption if the resolution did not pass.

From the Daily of
January 18, 1914

January 18 falling on Sunday, there was no issue of The Daily on that date.

The Salvation Army's slogan: "A man may be down but never out," evidently was adopted before the present-day hootch standard became what it is.

Perhaps one reason so few newspaper men are bankers, the former class never could permit accumulation of undivided profits.

Taxation without representation may be tyranny, but taxation without the means to pay causes a visit to the banker.

He who believes that the whole scheme of life is wrong usually finds consolation in the belief that he is different from other people and really cannot be as bad as they. He must enjoy fooling himself.

Valentino and Grange are indignant at some of the newspaper stories published about them, yet had the newspapers refrained from publishing news of these two scintillants, it is probable that the former would be engaged in spaghetti production, and certain that the latter would still be packing ice.

To ask a merchant to place a confidence in your ability to pay, should first cause you to place a confidence in the product the merchant has to offer. Do not look upon him as one who's sole aim it is to present you with high prices. He is human and he is fair, else he would not remain in business.

The Alabama Brick & Tile company joins the list of industries located here which are adopting expansion programs. The company reports a sound business background for the past year and looks forward to a greater future. Such expression is voiced by every manufacturer, every business man, every citizen of the Tennessee Valley.

Farmers are declared to be in better condition at the end of the year 1925 than at any previous year since 1920. That is only more reason why they will join as a class with the townspeople in an effort to place the Tennessee Valley ahead in everything under the shining sun, from the leading agricultural section to a leadership in industrial lines as well. The farming and business team is one which cannot be downed, once it gets underway, setting hands to constructiveness.

THE SIXTH ANNIVERSARY OF A GREAT EDICT

Saturday, the nation observed the sixth anniversary of the birth of prohibition and at the same time commemorated in a way the death of misery and ignorance. Reading the dispatches of the Associated Press it was refreshing to watch the faces of people, some seeing the advantages of the law against whiskey, others reading where there had been an increase in crime statistics and laid it to the door of prohibition.

There is nothing that people may say that will cause a belief that crime has increased through the enactment of prohibition laws. The theory is reasoned in a circle and is unanswerable, but nevertheless entirely without foundation. It is to be considered that the increase in crime is due to a great extent to the employment of thousands of men and women solely for detecting crime. It is likewise a crime this day and time to take a drink of whiskey, whereas in the days before prohibition a man could stagger along the streets and so long as he did not engage in an outrageous brawl, break windows, or beat his wife, he was considered a peaceful and law-abiding citizen. The prohibition laws cannot be given as cause for an increase in crime, as a matter of fact it is difficult to believe that crime has increased so steadily as it is pictured. There must be taken into consideration the ratio of population, as compared with population of twenty years ago, there must likewise be considered the agencies for telling the story of crime, the increase in the number of newspapers whose men go through the day in search for crime news.

If you are to criticize prohibition why not give the law a fair trial? Place its assets by the side of its liabilities and then give your answer to the justice and the worth of the law. Misery and want, ignorance, have passed into a past era with the coming of prohibition amendment. Schools and churches are now crowded, bank deposits are running high, people who never before enjoyed luxuries now are able to do something beside work from morning until night, to go home to a miserable tenement where only an increased misery confronted them in the cry of children for bread. Sanitation is another lesson that prohibition has had much to do with the teaching. You read of an outbreak of disease and the next day you read of means and ways adopted for checking the spread, this of course cannot be credited to prohibition entirely any more than can it be said that prohibition is responsible for the crime wave, but we do believe that prohibition has played its vital part in raising America to the front ranks of the world.

Of course measures will be adopted for making the law

more effective, people and progress are one and the same, time will tell the story of increased surveillance on the part of a better managed and equipped force, a force that will enforce the law in the real sense of the word where law enforcement is necessary.

As the sixth anniversary of prohibition enactment passes, we cannot help but pause and thank those in their foresight for the passage of the measure. Drastic, it seems to a great many Americans, they, however, are in the minority. The prohibition laws are here to stay, the laws stand on the record that has been built from the days following the war until the present. The nation is prosperous, the nation is becoming educated, the nation is sensible, the crime wave is the only flaw that can be picked and that cannot be laid upon the enforcement of mandates against whiskey. We are thankful for the passage of the act and we feel that we are speaking for a majority of the American people.

GOVERNOR BRANDON DISAPPOINTS PEOPLE OF NORTHERN SECTION

Governor William W. Brandon has chosen an evident dilatory stand with his refusal to call the legislature into session. Governor Brandon has not stated that he will not call the legislative bodies to arms during the coming year, but this first move to us looks like the death knell of the good roads and educational issues in Alabama, so far as an expansion of state facilities are taken into consideration. We are sorry that the governor has chosen a "thumbs down" method.

From some angles we have heard that the governor has made a wise political move, from the majority we hear that the governor has made the first step toward halting progress in road building.

It seems to be the opinion in some sectors that to bring the vote upon a $75,000,000 at this time will mean the certain defeat of the issue and a distinct blow at good roads. This opinion is based on hearsay to the effect that the present road administration has not come up to the needs of the people and has not been conducted in a manner benefitting the great state which it represents. Now there may be truth in the belief that a good roads issue will be voted down by the people of Alabama, but we do not feel that such action will ever be recorded, no matter what or who is connected with the administration. People of Alabama recognize their own needs and they do not need to be told to cast a vote for good roads, they will vote for better roads just as naturally as they arise in the mornings and eat their breakfast.

Regarding the latter opinion, that the governor has halted legislation on road and educational needs, we believe this line of reasoning to be sound. In the northern area people have come to believe that a bond issue is not a measure for discussion, it is regarded as a necessity. They have ceased apparently to listen to the cries from other sections of the state over a lack of adequate highway transportation facility, for they see the work that the commission has done in this section. We can point to but a single main trunk highway at this time that is not included in the 1926 program, the highway leading to Decatur from Huntsville, entering the Bee Line at the Athens crossroads. The Moulton road, the Bee Line highway, the Courtland roadway, the Shoals highway from Athens to the Tri-Cities are either in good repair, offering splendid facilities, or are included in a construction program that is to be started at once. It is probable that the commission has overlooked the value of paved highway over the chert surface, but this, we believe, comes only with years of service. The chert highway is like unto a war measure, it is a necessity that transportation might not be halted, the paved highway to follow later. Here is a matter that is a benefit to the later paving idea, the road has had time to settle, bridges are already "in," fills are settled and there will be no cracking of the paved surface due to the sinking of filled earth. In times of war a nation does not halt to wait for the last word in machine perfection, that nation goes to work to equip its men in the best way possible for the time being, later to fill in where trouble appears and where the old system has proved inadequate. The chert surfacing, while we are not in accord with the plan at all for the maintenance problem is one which is never solved, costing the state hundreds of thousands of dollars, is imperative, it must be placed to take care of the present, there can be no further waiting, hence the department gives the people the very best that it can in the short time allotted to take care of the state's needs.

It may be true of South and central Alabama that the commission has not given a great deal of thought to road building in those sections, and it may not be true, yet we recognize sufficient reason for the commission devoting time and money to North Alabama. This section of the state for a great many years lay dormant with a lack of road facilities, Alabama was criticised from on end of the nation to the other for her lack of road facilities. A great deal of this poor advertising came to the state through the failure to provide a good road system in this section. Albany-Decatur today stands as the "Gateway to Alabama" with the work on the half million dollar bridge going steadily forward and with the Bee Line highway open from the Tennessee state line to past the Cullman sector. Really we find very little to beef at the state highway department for and for placing additional funds with the commission we are pleased to mark "yes" on the ballot, provided Governor Brandon does not see fit longer to hold up action.

The Tennessee Valley has not been given paved roads, we would like to see them running as ribbons over the face of our fertile limits, but the Valley is gaining rapidly in road prominence and with the aid given the state by county departments, building trade tributaries into the main line highways, we are well satisfied with the progress and feel that there is more in sight just so soon as the department is given money to work with and unless money is provided the work must halt. The cure, it seems, will be worse than the disease, some roads are better than no roads at all.

We are not talking of the highway department in the future for the organization of that body will depend entirely upon the man who succeeds Brandon, we are speaking of the need of today and to save us we can find no defense for the governor in his refusal to call the legislature into session, particularly when the people of Alabama are entering the greatest year ever to be written in Alabama history. Brandon may reconsider, we feel that he will not, then the state can determine whether roads and schools will be aided or whether we are to slide down the state thermometer of prosperity that has proved so hard and difficult a task to climb.

The life of a state revolves about the road system. Marketing problems are solved with the advent of good roads, schools are aided materially with children in the rural sections given a chance at educational facilities, the pleasure of the middle and upper strata of peoples is effected, tourist travel is encouraged, the state is advertised to the extent that its name and its road system are allied. Do you think that the people of Alabama will say no to a bond issue of so much importance, we hardly see that such action will ever be spread upon the voting records of the state of Alabama.

REDUCE DENTAL BILLS BY PROPER COOKING

It Is a Crime Against the Body to Throw Away Fluid in Which Meats and Vegetables Have Been Cooked.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

An interesting letter came to me a few days ago. A reader complains of the dental bills he has to pay. He believes the members of his family have bad teeth because of the lack of lime in their food. It is not the expense that worries him, but the unwillingness of the family to adopt a more sensible dietary in order that they may have better health.

There is no doubt the quality of food has much to do with the strength and vigor of the body. There is a serious fault in the modern dishes. Too many of them are denatured. The minerals and vitamins are removed and the body is robbed of elements of vital importance.

I read a funny editorial the other day. It joked me about one of my articles and joked Judge Gary, whom I had quoted. We had talked about the "juices" in which vegetables are cooked. Our critic said we should use terms the public understands. What we meant, he said, was "pot likker."

Yes, that is what we meant—pot likker. It is a crime against the body to throw it away. The fluid in which the meat and vegetables are cooked contains all the soluble salts, the valuable minerals of the food. It should never be thrown away. At the end of the cooking, the vegetables should be uncovered so the steam can escape, leaving the precious minerals in the food. Likewise, the meat gravy should be served so as to save the minerals.

Housewives should be pains to serve cereals with the outer coverings on, or should add bran to the cereal in order that the mineral elements of the grain will be included in the dish. Enriched rice is a valuable food, while highly polished rice is little more than a confection. Served with top milk or cream, the unpolished rice is a very important food. When raisins are added it becomes one of the best possible dishes.

Milk is one of the richest of foods as regards lime and other minerals. I am glad it is being added to bread in the modern bakery. One way and another, milk should be consumed in quantities by every household.

When there are young and growing children, it is important to give every possible food which is mineral carrying. For such families the whole wheat or other coarse breads are essential. The envelope of the wheat contains the minerals, which should be included in the bread. If children are properly fed from the time of their birth and if their mothers were given the right diet before the children were born, there is every likelihood that bones and teeth, cell and fibre, will be as nature intended.

The greater number killed were victims of their own carelessness commonly described as "jay-walking."

When a man on the railroad track is killed, nobody blames the locomotive or suggests suppressing railroads. The signs read "stop, look and listen," and "keep off the tracks."

City streets and country highways are now in fact railroad tracks. Public convenience, happiness and comfort demand all possible encouragement of the automobile industry.

Not a few, but tens of millions now ride in automobiles every day.

It is therefore a crime to misrepresent the situation, discourage the automobile industry, blaming the individual careful driver for the carelessness and stupidity of "Jay-Walkers." The automobile industry is the greatest blessing of the human race.

JOHN HERTZ, who bosses the Yellow taxis and omnibuses all over the world, is determined to make his drivers polite and gentle, even if it hurts.

On the back of each Chicago taxi you see the sign, "If I break any traffic rule please report me."

This is almost overdoing it, and is only equaled by a sign that humorous Americans used to wear on each good old fashioned New Year's day, "When I am drunk, please send me home."

IRVING BERLIN and his young wife, on board ship send to the wide world this information, by wireless, "we have nothing to add to our only authorized statement in New York—that we are supremely happy."

That's good; perhaps it would be as well to let it go at that and let the world drift back to normal.

Two things you notice, first, that "personages" deplore rude publicity forced upon them by newspapers.

Second, that when the newspapers desist, "personages" are apt to do the forcing.

Phelps Assails the Modern Dance As Being Dangerous Rather Than Wicked

(Associated Press)

DETROIT, Jan. 15.—Every effort to denature the dance has ended in failure, declares Dr. W. H. Phelps, editor of the Michigan Christian Advocate, official Methodist Episcopal organ for the Detroit area.

"Henry Ford has put the world on wheels but to teach the world to dance decently is a giant's task," asserts Dr. Phelps. "We wish he could do it, but our faith is admittedly small. Nevertheless he may be right. Our cocksureness about the dance is gone but our old convictions have not faded an iota."

Wedding of the Dancer Followed "Party," Miss Gray Says

(Associated Press)

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 18.—Fawn Gray, dancer, filed suit for annulment of marriage to Theodore MacFarland, Philadelphia newspaper man, today. The papers were placed on record by her attorney, J. Charles Fagan, who said the dancer was expected here within a month for the taking of testimony.

The annulment papers give the dancer's real name as Gladys Marie Brown, daughter of a New York car toonist, her age as 20, and that MacFarland as 27. The marriage it is stated, took place two months ago after a party, beginning in Philadelphia and ending in New York.

The papers allege that all members of the party were under the influence of liquor when the ceremony was performed.

Miss Gray states she had no recollection of the ceremony and asks annulment on the grounds of fraud misrepresentation and deceit.

Miss Gray, several months ago won the favor of Harry K. Thaw, during one of his visits to New York. When she took a bouquet of roses to Evelyn Nesbitt Thaw, she was turned away from the door of her Chicago hospital room.

Hearings Planned On Volstead Law

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The unofficial house committee for modification of the Volstead act, headed by Representative Hill, republican of Maryland, today issued an appeal signed by 56 house members urging other members to join in an attempt to liberalize the law at this congress.

The committee proposes to hold public hearings to consider suggestions for "proper liberalization" before agreeing on a bill for modification.

State of Alabama, Morgan County vs. W. T. Murphree vs. A. J. Key
Before J. M. Minor, a justice of the peace for said county. Before me, J. M. Minor, Justice of the peace, this the 5th day of December, came the plaintiff in the above entitled cause, and it appearing that certain property of the said defendant has been levied upon, to-wit: Two boxes of household goods, by virtue of an attachment issued from my office returnable the 5th day of December, 1925, which cause has been continued to January 28th, 1926, and that said defendant is a non-resident of this state, and resides at Wingate, Texas it is therefore ordered that said notice of attachment and the return thereof be given to the said A. J. Key by publication once a week for three successive weeks before the said 28th day of January, in the newspaper published in said county and a copy thereof mailed to the said defendant at his place of residence when known.

Given under my hand this the 4th day of January, 1926.

J. M. MINOR
Justice of the Peace
Jan. 4-11-18.

"We no longer think of the dance as wicked, as we once did, but think of it now rather as dangerous."

There are worse things than the dance, the writer adds, and asserts that the "night automobile undoubtedly is luring more girls to immorality than the dance ever did, and that is saying a good deal."

Dr. Phelps maintains that "an evil-by-product is the use of the dance to finance the athletic department of the school which makes non-participants appear as slackers and brings in outsiders that leave little cash and frequently a lot of smut behind them."

FEDERAL DRY CREW MAY BE ENLARGED

Administrator For The Tenth District To Visit Birmingham

(Associated Press)

The prohibition force of the United States government in the northern district of Alabama may be enlarged as result of the visit to Birmingham today of D. D. Jackson, administrator for the tenth division of the prohibition department.

"Mr. Jackson will make a general survey of this district during his stay," said S. O. McPherson, deputy administrator for the district, "and I will lay before him the needs of my territory for an increased force. We will also discuss general plans for enforcing the federal prohibition law, and the best method of cooperating with local and state authorities."

At present the state has about two prohibition enforcement agents in every district to the federal government's one man, and it is felt that close cooperation between the two departments would obtain more effective and economical enforcement of the eighteen amendment. Mr. McPherson was in Montgomery the first of the week discussing plans with state officials.

HIKE IS THOROUGHLY
ENJOYED BY SCOUTSFive Local Troops Go
To Woods For a
Day's Outing

The best hike of the season was held Saturday when scouts from the five troops of Albany-Decatur, with the Scout executive, made their way to the woods east of the Twin Cities.

The morning was used in passing tests. The noon hour, which was a very busy one, was given over to cooking, every boy cooking his own meal. A good part of the afternoon went for games in which all boys took part; the remainder of the afternoon was taken up in making souvenirs and useful articles out of wood.

Troop 20 led in number of boys on hike having ten members present but was followed closely by the other four troops. These hikes will be made every two weeks until the weather will permit the carrying out of the overnight hikes and other hikes and camps planned for the Scouts and Scout leaders of this district of the Tennessee Valley Council.

Recovered From The Ohio

(Associated Press)
PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 18.—The death toll resulting from the fall of a street car from a bridge into the Ohio river here, last night, was increased to four today, with the recovery of the body of Gilbert J. Schell, conductor of the ill-fated trolley.

The body was found in the river a short distance from the scene of the accident. Twenty two were injured, several seriously.

Miss Agnes Johnson, 23, was the only other of the known victims to drown, her body having been found floating in the river soon after the crash. The two others, Mrs. Rebecca Meek, 60 and her granddaughter, Marian Signet, seven, succumbed to injuries at a hospital.

Columbia Heads
East Basketeers

(Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Columbia, with victories over Princeton, Dartmouth and Cornell, leads the eastern inter-collegiate basketball league with three wins and no defeats. Dartmouth and Yale are tied for second with two victories in three starts. Cornell with one defeat and Yale with three setbacks in as many starts bring up the foot of the procession.

Laub, Columbia forward, leads the league in the matter of individual scoring, with 14 field goals and five accurate tosses from the free throw line for a total of 33 points; one point ahead of Loeb, of Princeton, who has scored 32. Manheim of Columbia, and Whittaker of Dartmouth, are tied for third place with 23 points.

Columbia has shown great scoring powers in three games, having totalled 107 points to 62 by their opponents.

Contract has been let by the American Trust and Savings bank at Birmingham for the construction of an annex to the banking rooms of the institution. Work will start immediately, it is announced.

Time Nears For Talk Of Baseball Loop
For Cities; Local Fans See Good Prospect

As the wintry weeks wear on the hot stove artists gather momentum in their talk of a baseball league to be established through the Valley section this year. A four or six league circuit seems to be the verdict rendered by the majority of cracker box addicts. Local followers of the diamond see an excellent prospect for a Valley circuit, believing that the expense of travelling into other states has been one of the failing points in the past.

It is suggested by some that a Valley circuit be composed of Albany-Decatur, Athens, the Tri-Cities, Huntsville in a four team circuit, adding Hartselle and Cullman in the six team affair. If travelling expenses do not prove too high it is suggested that Anniston and Gadsden be considered in the Valley circuit.

Michigan Tops
Big Ten Outfits

(Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Michigan remains the only undefeated team in the big ten basketball race at the end of the third week of competition, with victory to its credit over Iowa and Northwestern.

Wisconsin, Iowa, Ohio State and Purdue went into a tie for the runner up berth with two games won and one lost apiece. Illinois, the last of the conference teams to go into action, trounced Minnesota 17 to 8 last Monday, but was in turn humbled by Ohio State, 30 to 18, Saturday.

Purdue, following a snappy victory over Ohio State Wednesday, repeated Saturday at the expense of Northwestern in what was perhaps the fastest and hardest fought game of the week. The score was 38 to 35 and the game was saved for the Boilermakers in the last two seconds of play with a long shot from the field by Capt. George Spradling.

Chicago went into the 50-50 division by upsetting the dope and forcing the undefeated Wisconsin five to take the short end of a 17 to 15 tally last night.

TULANE STAR GIVEN
AWARD OF TROPHYFlournoy So Affected
He Is Unable To Respond

(Associated Press)
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18.—Five awards emblematic of special recognition for athletic prowess were made to as many individuals and teams at the twentieth annual banquet of the veteran athletes of Philadelphia.

The Joseph H. Jolley trophy for supremacy among eastern football teams of 1925 was awarded to Dartmouth.

The veteran athletes' trophy went to Charles P. Flournoy, of Tulane, as the most valuable football player of last season. Flournoy was so affected he was unable to respond, Dr. A. B. Dinwiddle, professor of Tulane, spoke for him.

University of Pennsylvania all-American end and captain of the 1926 football team, George C. Thayer, received a special memorial cup in recognition of his last season's deeds on the field. This was the John A. Fisher trophy.

Edward Swinebourne, representing Georgetown university's champion two-mile relay, comprising Swinebourne, Wm. R. Sullivan, George Marsters and John C. Holder was awarded the Samuel E. Shull trophy.

The John Patterson trophy, emblematic of American college supremacy in springtime, went to Frank V. Hussey, representing Boston college.

The speakers, who included Senator Pepper, and Murray Hulbert, president of the A. A. U., paid tribute to the memory of Andy Smith, late head coach of the University of California football team.

Pimples

What can I do?

"Oh, why can't I have a skin like other girls? Why do I have to have these ugly pimples, blotches and blackheads?"

"If I could only find something that would clear up my skin and give me back my soft, rosy complexion, I know I would be the happiest girl in the world! What can I do?"

Is that you talking? If it is, you don't have to worry a minute! Just build up the rich, red blood in your body. Then your skin will be as clear and soft as anybody's.

That's what S. S. S. has been doing for generations—helping Nature build rich, red blood! You can build red blood-cells so fast that the impurities that cause breaking out on the skin hardly get into the system before the pure blood annihilates them—kills them right out—stops them from breaking out through the skin.

And then this rich, red, pure blood feeds and nourishes the tissues of the skin and keeps it looking healthy.

That's all there is to it. Healthy, vigorous, red blood such as S. S. S. helps Nature build, makes you healthy all over. It beautifies your skin—drives away pimples, blackheads, blotches, rash, boils and eczema—gives you back your appetite—builds firm, plump flesh and fills you full of new life and energy.

All drug stores sell S. S. S. Get the larger bottle. It's more economical.
